

TARIFF PICTURES.
Chicago's factory employees were earning an average of $4.36 a year in 1880. Their earnings had grown to $9.80 in 1890. The number of hands employed in the machine grew from 79,414 to 209,108.

It is to be hoped that Carl Schurz will get an office, for if he doesn't he will flop back into the Republican party.

This is a Republican year. We've pretty nearly got the President whom we didn't elect, and things are coming our way in good shape generally.

Representative Kilgore of Texas, when asked if he was going to ask for a Federal appointment, said: "Not much; I am coming back to Congress to raise Cain."

Chicago Dispatch: If, as now seems likely, President Cleveland adheres to Civil Service principles, he will prove to be a most offensive partisan to a majority of his party.

Jefferson declared the Presidency to be "a splendid misery," and the Democrats are likely to impress Cleveland with the bitter truth of the observation during his second term.

Nobody will be disposed to envy Secretary Gresham his feelings when he comes to counteract suggestions for Democratic successors to the seats of Lincoln and Grant.

Senator Allison presents figures showing that the appropriations of the last Congress exceeded those of its Republican predecessor by $28,091,000, and he is a man whose figures are always accurate.

There is evident reason to believe that Cleveland fully appreciated the fact that he must maintain pleasant relations with the Republicans if he expects to prevent the Democrats from wrecking his Administration.

It is related of General Grant that while engaged in the animated argument with Mrs. John A. Logan on one occasion, he opened his cigar case, offered her a cigar and took one himself. He lit his own and proceeded with the discussion. Mrs. Logan quietly accepted one and now values it highly as a souvenir.

When Texas reduces her Democratic pluralities 100,000 or 150,000 she will be recognized by Democratic Presidents when offices are given out. The plan is easy to adopt. She will feel better off even if she doesn't get as many offices as she wants. She expected the Attorney Generalship, but Massachusetts got it. She looked for the Interior, but that prize has gone to Indiana. Now let her name something else that she wants, and see Ohio, Vermont or some other state get it.

Our population of foreign birth is actually and proportionately much smaller than one imagines. By the census of 1890 there were 9,249,547 persons of foreign birth in the United States; that is, the percentage of such persons to the total population was 14.77 per cent. In 1880 we received 290,000 immigrants; in 1881, 603,000; in 1884, 518,000; in 1885, 395,000; in 1886 we took in only 234,000; then, in 1887, came a jump to 490,000; in 1888 we received 547,000; in 1889, 444,000; in 1890, 655,000; in 1891, 560,000; and in 1892, 632,000. The total immigration during these years amounted to 5,761,582.

The Times Star hits the tack on the head when it says the exclusion of officeholders from the list of eligible candidates for places under the Administration is advertised as an evidence of a lofty purpose to promote the public interest by representing the tendency toward building up an official caste.

The doctrine of rotation in office, taken up by the new Administration, is in fact based upon the spoils idea. The argument in favor of it is that a man who had an office has had his reward, and no matter how capable and faithful he proved himself, he must stand aside for somebody who has no chance at the public crib. Any one who looks upon the Government as a business institution and clamors loudly for the merit system in the Civil Service cannot have much to say in favor of rotation in office as a reform idea.

The people were gathered at Bellamy Monday evening a railway team, with the front wheels of a wagon attached, came springing down the pike, scattering the crowd right and left, and struck a spring wagon, turning it up side down. The horses continued their mad career across Owl Hollow bridge, when one of them fell, enabling some young men near to secure them. No serious damage.

The stereoscopic entertainment given by Professor C. C. Chino two nights this week was the most magnificent one modest community ever had the privilege of witnessing. For the small sum of 18 cents one could view paintings and statues and see in reality what would cost many hundreds of dollars. The realistic representations of works of the world's great masters are now being shown in the temperance lecture was very impressive and instructive. The hymn "Able With Me," sustained by two voices, was very touching. The memory of Brother Chino's matchless sermons on Lord's day and night in connection with the entertainment will surely stay before the thought to all lovers of the good and beautiful.
